A letter has just been received here from Mrs. H. J. Williamson, wife of Professor H. J. Williamson, which states that their family of father, mother, and three small children are in very destitute circumstances. Professor Williamson will be remembered kindly by a large number of friends and former pupils in his management some years ago of the Pen Art School, in Shafer building, of this city. Since his leaving Richmond there has been a great deal of sickness in the family, and all his means have been exhausted. They are now at St. Andrew's Bay, Fla.

Lonn Exhibition to Continue. The Loan Exhibition will be open until next Thursday night. On Monday or Tuesday evening the interesting stereoption views of old Virginia homes and churches will be repeated, the exact date to be given hereafter. On other evenings there will be music, when old-time airs will be rendered. At 5 o'clock to-morrow afternoon tea will be dispensed by Misses Annis How-ard, Berta Wellford, Lucie Wormley, Precious Moore, Belle Perkins, and Mary Boydion Joilings.

BOYDTON, VA., May 1.—(Special.)—Mr. E. J. Adams, the poultry operator, who can be found at all times now in the county jail here, is still very reticent, and has requested the jailer not to admit any more visitors to see him. Adams is getting his meals from the table of one of the hotels in town.

The protracted drought in this section has at last been broken by the visitation of a refreshing and copious rain, which fell last night and to-day.

The Boydion Chronicle, a weekly journal, which suspended publication the past month, has again appeared upon the field of journalism.

ASHLAND, VA., May 1.—(Special.)—Field-day exercises at Randolph-Macon College did not take place to-day, owing to rain. If it is clear Monday, the games will be pulled off.

On the farm of Mr. J. J. Carroll, near here, a dead carrier-pigeon was found to-day. On its leg was a tag bearing the following: "T., 1968." The bird had been shot.

The Fourqurean-Price Company.

Honesty, Reliability, Integrity! Three great principles in business and the least recognized. There never was a time in the history of the Dry Goods business when honesty, reliability, and integrity played so small a part in the transaction of business as at the present day. Men seem to have gone wild in their effort to sell goods, and there is no deception too great or exaggeration too large so long as the good people come and buy.

The greatest monument a store can build for itself is a record for honesty, reliability, and integrity, and thirty years of unbroken faith with the people attest our faith in it. We have fought the fight against deception. We have dared to tell you the true value of goods without exaggeration. We have dared to cling solely and only to honest business principles-to seal your patronage with the inseparable bond of fullest confidence never betrayed. We are continually in your service-seeking, satisfying, saving for you.
